| Ask for the WiFi password | Think (NOT say) "I thought you'd be tall" | Coffee spill in stairwell | Wait at Starbucks despite preordering | Feel weirdly vulnerable and exposed |
| Find a desiccated spider in desk | Throw away moldy workout garb | Realize that real life has no mute button | "I didn't recognize you with a mask on" | Google your office building's address |
| Adjust your chair | "How do I call IT again?" |  | Buy "fancy" leggings or sweatpants | Slack a coworker who's five feet away |
| "Is this food/drink/medicine still good?" | Wipe fog off your glasses | Take bathroom selfie | Eavesdrop on a colleague's phone call | Pretend to text to avoid hallway small talk |
| Need help with a hybrid meeting | Use a phone that's not a mobile | RIP, potted plant | Not hug your work spouse | <small>Discover you haven't made eye contact with a coworker for two years because on Zoom you only ever looked at yourself, counting your newly gray hairs and adjusting the "Touch up my appearance" slider</small> |

| Delete ancient voicemail | Clean filthy monitor | Office crush no longer attractive | Eat stale celebratory doughnuts | Reflect on burnout |
| Introvert realizes they like people after all | Ants on floor or desk | Rotted food in fridge | Smize above your mask | "It feels like we never left" |
| Reunite with favorite printer, which then jams | Missing laptop dongle |  | Use Google Maps to find your building | Zoom meeting in your cube |
| Wow, that coworker chews loudly | "Did you get COVID? I got COVID" | Fist-bump like a tech bro | Wonder if bottled water expires | Lunch from the snack machine |
| Enter wrong restroom | 2020 hand sanitizer has evaporated | Toss office supplies that don't bring you joy | Temporary nostalgia for commute | Extrovert realizes they liked being alone |
